

We need vigorous competition in the media to insure an informed populace. Large media entities have shown repeatedly that they can't be trusted to self-police, and facilitating an even smaller pool of corporate owners will mean even less chance for competitive pressures to keep corporate broadcasters honest. I honestly believe that this is a terrible idea that is very harmful to a key part of a vibrant democracy.